General Pope's Report.

Major-General John Pope, commanding the Division of the Pacific, in his annual report to the Adjutant-General, recommends an enlargement of the quarters at certain posts. He suggests that lands in the Indian reservations near Fort Gaston be assigned in severalty to the Indians now occupying them, and he wishes also that the Indians in the vicinity of Fort McDermott be provided for in that neighborhood. He thinks there is no sufficient reason for keeping up Fort Halleck, but forbears any recommendation because of a different opinion entertained by the Lieutenant-General. General Crook's policy toward the Apaches is highly recommended. He calls attention to the defenseless condition of the entrance to Puget Sound, as reported by General Miles, of the Department of the Columbia.

MONTANA TERRITORY.

An Interesting Review of Its Condition by Governor Crosby.—The Indian Policy.—The Discovery of Gold in the Little Rockies.

Governor Crosby, of Montana, in his annual report, estimates the increase of the population of the Territory during the year is 4,000 and the present population about 94,000. He says the cattle now in the Territory number over 900,000, and the value of the taxable property, which he says does not represent one-quarter of the wealth of the Territory, is between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000. In other directions Montana is steadily increasing the value of her material resources, and she will at an early day apply for admission to the Union as a State. The announcement of the discovery of gold in the Little Rockies, near the heart of the great Northern Indian Reservation, 100 miles southeast of Assiniboine, has drawn hundreds of miners to that locality, and the Governor gives it as his opinion that it would be unwise to attempt to prevent the intrusion of the whites. A large portion of his report is devoted to the Indian question. The Governor favors a reduction in the size of the Indian reservations. He thinks a few thousand Indians should not be allowed to occupy an area equal to that of a large State when they do not use it, and when their occupation prevents its settlement by white men. He advises a concentration of Indians upon similar reservations, and recommends they be taught to be self-supporting. The Governor also objects to the present policy which permits Indians to lease their lands for grazing purposes, on the ground that it opens the way for large corporations and speculators to get a footing on these reservations to the disadvantage of bona fide settlers who would be glad to purchase small farms if the reservations were opened for settlement. Of the present condition of the northern Indians in Montana, the Governor says, although rations have been supplied them, they are now in a deplorable condition, and he fears many of them will die during the coming winter. He describes the late Superintendent of the park and assistants as entirely worthless, and about as competent to discharge their duties properly as is a Sioux Indian to run a locomotive. He recommends the appointment of experienced woodmen to take care of the Park, and suggests that United States Cavalry be detailed to guard its borders, which are now the resort of escaped criminals. Much space is devoted by the Governor to the cattle question. He says the Canadian officials of the Dominion press, aided by certain Chicago stockyard men, who fear a diversion of their business, have maligned and outrageously attacked the health of Wyoming and Montana cattle, and all movements of our stock men towards obtaining a foreign market are bitterly opposed. In conclusion he recommends that no polygamist Mormon be allowed to pre-empt lands. He thinks this prohibition would be a step in the complicated problem of extinguishing the over-shadowing evil of Mormonism.

Gen. Pope's Recommendation.

Major-General John Pope, commanding the Division of the Pacific, in his annual report to the Adjutant-General, recommends the enlargement of the quarters at certain posts. He suggests that the lands in the Indian reservations near Fort Gaston be assigned in severalty to the Indians now occupying them. He wishes also that the Indians in the vicinity of Fort McDermit should be provided for in that neighborhood. He thinks there is no sufficient reason to keep up Fort Halleck, but forbears any recommendation because of the different opinion entertained by the Lieutenant-General. General Crook's policy toward the Apaches is highly commended. He calls attention to the defenceless condition of the entrance to Puget Sound, as reported by General Miles of the Department of the Columbia.

Rights of Citizenship.

The New York Sun in referring editorially to the decision of Judges Field, Sawyer and Sabin, as to whether a boy born in California, whose parents have resided in that State twenty years, but had always remained subjects of the Emperor of China, was a citizen of the United States, says: "The effect of the decision just rendered in California is practically to hold that all persons born within the territory of the United States, of foreign parentage, are to be deemed citizens, unless they are children of the diplomatic representatives of other governments, or unless they were born on public vessels of another power, or unless they have declared their citizenship in this country. This decision affects the interests of thousands of residents of the United States and is of great importance, as being the most authoritative judicial utterance on the subject up to the present time." The question is discussed in the last number of the American Law Review by George D. Collins of the San Francisco bar. He answers it in the negative, saying that birth does not, ipso facto, confer citizenship, and that in order to constitute a person a native or natural-born citizen of the United States, his father, or in case of illegitimacy, his mother, must be a citizen at the time of his birth.

In Good Condition.

In looking over the field the New York Sun concludes that the Republican party is in better condition than before election. It says the losses it has suffered through the withdrawal of the Independents, have been made up by the accession of Irishmen and workingmen who went over from the Democrats in large numbers. There never before was a party which gained at once such a body of earnest and valuable material from the very bone and sinew of the country, while there is no sense in the idea that either of the two parties is going to be broken up at present. The Republicans are politically in much the better condition of the two. They are a compact union. There is no difference of opinion or of purpose among them. The discordant elements have gone out, and the army which remains is peerless for steadiness, and was disciplined by the defeat of last week rather than destroyed by it. Considered merely as a political organization, the Republican party is in good fighting order.

The Registry Law in Idaho.

The registry law has proved that there were in Idaho many foreigners who have been voting for years without having even declared their intention of becoming citizens of the United States. Samuel D. Aiken, of the Green Meadow ranch, near Boise, is, or was, one of these. When he went to vote the fact leaked out that he was not a citizen. Three or four parties hearing of this at once jumped Mr. Aiken's ranch, which includes a valuable tract of black walnut and other native timber; and it cost the poor man over $5,000 to get the parties off, so that he could obtain title from the government.

Preparing a Report.

Lieutenant Greely, of Arctic fame, has taken up his residence in Washington and is at work preparing a report of his Arctic expedition. The report will be confined principally to the scientific work of the expedition and will not contain anything sensational or startling. It is understood, however, that Lieutenant Greely will, when his report is completed, write a history of the expedition, which will contain some very interesting matter relative to the residence of the party in the Arctic seas.

Secretary McCulloch is busily engaged in the preparation of his annual report to Congress. It is intimated that he will make some important recommendations in regard to the revision of the tariff, on which subject he is understood to have very decided views. In the meantime, Assistant Secretary Coon is acting Secretary on all routine matters. The Secretary has requested the Comptroller of the Currency and the Treasurer of the United States to withhold their reports from publication until after the meeting of Congress.

Needs Reformation.

In the Connecticut State election just transpired, Waller, Democrat, for Governor, received 67,689 votes, while Harrison, Republican, received only 66,436. Waller's plurality was 1,253, but as there was a considerable scattering vote he lacks 984 of a majority of all the votes cast. Under these circumstances, as the constitution requires that the candidates for State offices shall receive a majority over all, neither of the candidates named has secured an election by the people. The provision of the law in the premises is that the lower House of the Legislature shall elect from the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes. As the lower House is Republican, Mr. Harrison will be elected, although he received 2,241 votes less than the combined opposition. This is the second instance in history where this has been done, the first occurring six years ago when Governor Andrews, Republican, was chosen by the House.

Funny Business.

It is currently reported that $1,300 of the coin that Fair sent to Virginia for legitimate expenses was given to a certain party in this city to be used for the purpose of corrupting voters who were supposed to be in favor of Cassidy for Congress. The printing bill and other necessary campaign expenses, for which Fair's sack was intended, were not considered as of any importance by the custodian of the wealth in this city. It is singular that Mr. Fair did not send his money to the Democratic Central Committee, who are supposed to be the proper persons to manage a campaign, instead of sending it to a private individual who has no responsibilities.—Virginia Footlight.

If Governor Cleveland remains true to the civil service reform principles upon which he seems to pride himself so much he will, if inaugurated, be the worst-hated man, in six months that ever sat in the Presidential chair. Your true Democrat does not believe in civil service reform. What he wants is a Postoffice or a Customhouse berth, and he will howl if he don't get what he is after.—Sac. Bee.

No sooner does there appear a probability of the election of Governor Cleveland than the hungry Democrats of San Francisco flock around the public crib like so many porkers around a swill trough. The great fight now seems to be over who will have the honor of parceling out the food allotted to the hungry ones of the Pacific Coast.—Sac. Bee.

Chairman Jones of the National Republican Committee has telegraphed for Bill Perry, Hank Knight and Big Sim to repair to New York to assist in the canvass of the vote for Presidential electors.—Eureka Republican.
